Hoffmann & Baron Brings On Patent Agent In NJ

By Emily Lever

Law360 (August 26, 2022, 4:53 PM EDT) -- Intellectual property law firm Hoffmann & Baron LLP has added an attorney to its Parsippany, New Jersey, practice, the firm announced.

Alexandria P. Stiteler, an associate and patent agent, is joining seven attorneys and IP specialists in the firm's Garden State office, according to Hoffmann & Baron's website.

"We are thrilled to have Alexandria join our team," Daniel Scola, the firm's managing partner, said in a statement. "We look to hire attorneys who have not only exceptional science and legal backgrounds, but exceptional personal communication skills. Alex clearly exemplifies the caliber of attorney we look to hire, and we are excited to provide her services to our clients."

Alexandria P. Stiteler

A recent graduate of St. John's University School of Law, Stiteler was an associate legal intern at Diamond Hospitality Group and Diamond Properties from June 2020 to May 2021, according to her LinkedIn profile. She was also a legal intern focused on intellectual property at Centric Brands from June 2021 to April 2022, conducting trademark clearance reviews and IP-related M&A due diligence. She holds a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of South Alabama.

Founded in 1984, Hoffmann & Baron has offices on Long Island and Washington, D.C., as well as New Jersey. The firm opened its D.C. office in July with a pair of new hires, Curtis R. Altmann, a former senior associate at Arnold & Porter, and Joseph W. Ricigliano, a former Perkins Coie LLP senior counsel.

Hoffman & Baron has previously represented P.C. Richard & Son, oxygen canister mask maker Boost Oxygen, and Major League Baseball.

Stiteler wasn't available for comment Friday. The firm was not available for further comment.
